Empathy Map

Trip Planner — Supporting Project Document

Think and Feel

The traveller may think about whether the destination fits the available days, whether activities suit their interests and whether spending can stay within a limit. They may feel overwhelmed by many scattered choices.

See

The traveller sees travel blogs, maps, social media recommendations, price pages and personal notes. These sources may disagree or become outdated.

Hear

Friends and family may recommend attractions, restaurants or packing items. Such advice can be useful but may not fit the traveller's budget or style.

Say and Do

The traveller searches, compares, writes lists, estimates costs and revises the plan. They may switch between multiple apps to assemble a single itinerary.

Pain Points

Too much information, unclear priorities, repetitive manual work, forgotten essentials and uncertainty about cost.

Design Opportunities

Collect the main preferences in one form, group outputs by purpose, label costs as estimates, and offer a save action so the plan can be revisited.